

International Washerwomen of the World
Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Barbara Wright
1004 Heritage Lake Drive
Cincinnati, OH 45242

Dear Mrs. Wright:

It has come to our attention that you have been washing pots and pans outside your home, four days of the last five, at below minimum wage.

We find this eliteist and, indeed, somewhat bereft of social conscience. Our members see this as taking food out of the mouths of their families.

How can you do amends for this indiscretion? We offer the following.

Become a member of the I.W.W.(International Washerwomen of the World.)

Send us an application, and a letter from your doctor, declaring you have rough, red, hands and broken nails. In addition, a letter from your pastor or priest, or mullah outlining your good intent, and begging forgiveness, should go a long way toward your membership approval.

We understand you did take your birthday off, during this five day spree, to spend with your paramour. That's understandable and laudable.

If you follow these directions, I am sure we can solve this dilemma. The I.W.W. welcomes you. Our motto: Washerwomen of the World unite, you have nothing to lose but your split nails.

Sincerely,

Har Har Hardy, President and your friend.
